BY TREACHERY,

O'Donovan Rossa, the Irish Agitator, Shot in Broad Daylight by a Woman.

The History of a Cool Headed and Handsome Woman With an English Accent.

Rossa and His Friends Allege that the Assassin is an English Spy.

An Exciting Report of the Trial of the Accused---What She Has to Say.

Rossa Shot in the Back.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—5:30, p. m.—O'Donovan Rossa has just been shot near his office in Centre street.

At twelve minutes past five this afternoon, Jeremiah O'Donovan Rossa, the Irish dynamiter, was shot by a woman on Chambers street, near Broadway. At that hour the streets were full of people, homeward bound, making their way toward the Brooklyn bridge and up town. The excitement over the shooting, although the man was recognized by a very few, was intense. The first shot fired took effect in O Donovan's body and he fell to the sidewalk. The woman continued to shoot until she emptied her five-chambered revolver. Only the first shot took effect. City Marshal James McAuley was present at the time, and breaking through the crowd that had collected before the shooting was over, seized the woman, who still had the smoking revolver in her hand, and told her she was under arrest. The woman offered no remonstrance, but allowed herself to be taken through a mass of citizens and to the city hall station house. George W. Barlow, a merchant at 146 Reade street, and Peter Y. Everett, formerly a reporter, who witnessed the shooting, accompanied the captor and captain to the station, saying they would be witnesses. When the woman had ceased firing O'Donovan arose to his feet and made an effort to find his way back to his office on Chambers street, which he had just left. He said, "I am shot," trying to place his hand on his back under his shoulder blade. After a few steps somebody in the crowd suggested that he should go the Chambers street hospital. A couple of men lent their arms and O'Donovan did as suggested and then directed his steps towards the hospital. He walked all the way there, a distance of nearly one quarter of a mile. He bled considerably on the way. Once in the hospital, he was undressed and examined by Dr. Dennison. It was found that the bullet had entered his back directly below the left shoulder blade. The doctor pronounced the wound not of a dangerous character, and began to prove for the ball. A great crowd of people had followed the wounded man down Chambers street and blockaded the road in front of the hospital after the door was locked behind O'Donovan and his escort.

Meanwhile, the woman had been taken to the station-house with another crowd following her. She was placed before Sergeant Kass' desk. She was a good looking woman and dressed neatly in plain, dark clothing and wore eye-glasses. She appeared like a school teacher with an intellectual face. Her manner was entirely composed and she answered some questions put to her promptly and without embarrassment. To others she simply shook her, head and said, "I shall only answer the questions I know you have a right to ask." McAuley handed a pistol of small caliber to the sergeant and said he had seen the prisoner shoot a man on Chambers street. Volunteer witnesses asserted the fact of the shooting. She was here asked, "Do you know the man you shot?"

"Yes," replied the prisoner, "certainly," with an English accent, "I shot O'Donovan Rossa."

Further questioning by the sergeant elicited that the prisoner's name was Yoslet Dudley, aged twenty-five; that she was a nurse and married and that she lived at No. 60 Clinton Place. She was asked the question why she had shot O'Donovan Rossa, how long she had been in America, and others, to which she made no answer. After her pedigree had been taken, she was escorted to the rear room and the crowd slowly dispersed. As there was no accommodation for prisoners in the city hall station, Mrs. Dudley was removed to the Oak street station at 7:15 p. m., and there placed in a cell. Her demeanor was that of a rational person, and a cool-headed one at that.

Rossa has been placed on a cot in a same ward with Captain Phelan, who was stabbed by Richard Short in O'Donovan's office, over three weeks ago. Phelan's wound was within eight beds of Rossa. The examination of the wound, by Dr. Kirby, showed that the bullet penetrated the back about half an inch above the left shoulder-blade. The ball ranged upward and inward, toward the spinal column, but did not touch the vertebræ. The bullet is evidently lodged in the muscles of the back, and beyond a slight shock, Rossa has suffered little. It was one time feared the bullet had penetrated the lung, but as the wounded man had not bled, this was afterward pronounced impossible. Had the spinal column been injured there would have been symptoms of paralysis, but none appeared. The doctors probed unsuccessfully for the bullet.

Rossa says: "This woman is an agent of the British minister, or somebody else. This woman came to me and said that she was Irish, but that her husband did not sympathize with the cause of Ireland. She was rabid in her view on dynamite. She said the London explosions were no good and wanted a horrible sacrifice of life to strike terror to the heart of Ireland's enemies. I told her I was not engaged in that business and I received no money for such purposes, but only to help the Irish cause. She reiterated that thousands of lives should be sacrificed in London. I had been to see my printer at 4 o'clock when I started out to meet her, she wanted me to sign a receipt for the money. The receipt contained the word "dynamite" and I declined to sign it. I put the paper in my pocket and walked out with her. She is nothing more or less than an agent of the British government, employed to assassinate me.

Patrick Joyce, a trusted lieutenant of Rossa, came to his chief shortly after Rossa was wounded. Rossa turned over to him all his papers, and among them, were letters from Mrs. Dudley. Joyce was loud in his determination of the cowardly attempt to slaughter the dynamiter and charged it was "England's work." It was the outcome of a conspiracy on the part of England to rid the world of Rossa, whom she dreads and fears. There is no question but what the friends of England in New York knew all about the plot and the woman was a tool selected to carry it into execution. They selected a woman for the deed, because they had no man among them brave enough to attack him. He has received scores of threatening letters, but paid no more attention to them than he would to a flea. He is not dead and England will find it out to her sorrow soon enough. Joyce went to the Oak street station to see if he could identify Mrs. Dudley as an English woman who had been defrauded by Rossa about a year ago. He was refused admission to her but when he heard a description of the prisoner, he concluded that it did not tally with that of the other woman. Rossa's admirers were greatly relieved when they found that his recovery was quite certain. Walker J. Elitt and Patrick Joyce went to Brooklyn, and broke the tidings of Rossa's attempted murder to his wife.

She received the tidings calmly. She immediately started for New York and reached the hospital at 10 o'clock, when she was admitted at once to her husband's bedside. Their meeting was quite affecting.

About 9 to-night Mrs. Dudley inquired about the condition of Rossa and seemed sorry when she heard he was still alive. Numbers of persons called to see her but she positively refused to be interviewed by any one.

MRS. DUDLEY CAREER.

Mrs. Dudley's career in New York is thus given: Thursday, January 22, Mrs. Dudley called at Mrs. Leggett's home for unemployed women, No. 60 Clinton Place. She was met by Mrs. Brown, matron.

"Can you accommodate me here?" asked Mrs. Dudley.

"Have you references?" asked Mrs. Brown.

"My reference is Dr. Thomas, whom everybody knows," was the reply, and then she added, "I am a professional nurse, and widow, and desire to stay here until I secure an engagement."

In telling the story of her acquaintance with Mrs. Dudley, the woman, Mrs. Brown, said: "She impressed me so very favorably that I told her she might remain in the house if she would room with two other young ladies. This she consented to do. Her only luggage was a valise, which she never unpacked, because, as she one day remarked, she might be called suddenly to attend to some patient.

"Did she refer at any time, while here, to her past domestic relations?"

"She told me she had been married and that she had two children, but that her husband and children had died abroad. Her father, she once remarked, had been engaged in the British cavalry service. She had noted as trained nurse in hospitals in London and Paris and she said she had diplomas from institutions of that kind; but I never examined them, though she showed them to some of the young ladies in the house. She was a thoroughly accomplished woman and her manners and speech betokened a thoroughbred woman of keen mind. She was an intensely patriotic little lady and sarcastic and cutting at times, when speaking of those who had been making war on her people. She was extremely near-sighted. In telling me of her work abroad, she one day said that she much more enjoyed hospital work abroad than nursing."

"What is the history of the movements of Mrs. Dudley while with you?" was asked of Mrs. Brown.

"As I said before, she came here one week ago Tuesday last. Tuesday is our weekly pad-day, and she paid her board up to last Tuesday. Tuesday she came to me hurriedly, and said she had a case, and was going to, and she would take her latch key with her for she might desire to return. She went, taking her valise, and, by the way, I never knew of her having a pistol. Last Thursday she returned, coming in in the most pelasant mood possible. She said her patient had died. Then she paid me her board up to Tuesday (to-morrow), but about 3 o'clock this afternoon she came to me and said she was going away again, but she might return, and if she did not she would send for her valise. I returned her her money for board and she went away between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and seemed not unduly excited. This evening I was shocked to hear that she had shot at the man Rossa."

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y., February 3.—The headquarters of O'Donovan Rossa's paper have been temporarily removed to the Chamber street hospital, where the editor-in-chief lies to-day with the bullet from Mrs. Dudley's pistol still imbedded in his back. Rossa's office in Centre street was closed to-day. The physicians at the hospital thought that Rossa improved during the night. The only visitor to Rossa up to 11 this morning was his secretary, Patrick Joyce. Mrs. Rossa went home late last night and had not returned this morning.

Mrs. Dudley was taken this morning from the station house, where she had been confined during the night, to the Tombs police court. A number of people gathered at the station house and followed the officer and his charge while they walked to the court house. When the court was reached Mrs. Dudley was conducted into a private examination room where she remained until her case was called by Justice Patterson. Arthur C. Butts, a lawyer, accompanied the accused to court. When the fact of the prisoner's presence became known the hall of the justice became crowded until entrance was denied to later comers. The entrance reserved for lawyers was occupied by a number of these gentlemen, some politicians and a swarm of reporters.

When Mrs. Dudley entered, the gaze of every person in the court room was riveted on her face. She walked calmly to the bar between the officers and the lawyer. After looking for a moment into the justice's face, she let her eyes fall to the ground. She looked a trifle tired, after having spent the night in the station house, but her cheeks were still rosy and her eyes were quite bright.

Lawyer Butts presented the case. He said he had received a dispatch late last night signed P. Edwards, asking him to defend Mrs. Dudley. He went to the station house and saw Mrs. Dudley. She said she knew nothing about the dispatch but desired him to take charge of her case. He learned by the morning papers today that the dispatch was a bogus one. J. Pierrepont Edwards, the British consul, denied having sent any dispatch whatever. Butts said he had not been consulted by any of Mrs. Dudley's friends and did not know what he should do in the case. He continued, "she told me she desired me to defend her. While reserving my right as counsellor to act in the case or to withdraw, I shall endeavor to do what will be for Mrs. Dudley's best interest. She neither plead guilty nor not guilty."

The court remarked that she would be held to await the result of Rossa's injury, and remanded her back to jail. When Mrs. Dudley turned to leave the court room a smile played upon her face. She drew her cloak about her and walked calmly out of the room behind the officer. The house surgeon of Chambers street hospital sent a communication to the court this morning stating that on examination of Rossa's wound he found that the ball entered over the center of the left scapula taking an upward and inward course passing beneath the skin four inches. This morning he was in a good condition, having passed a comfortable night and slept quietly, suffering no pain and no unfavorable symptoms have developed yet. Mrs. Dudley was locked up in the tombs. She refused to say anything to reporters.

Labor vs. Capitol.

DETROIT, Mich., February 2.—The cigar makers, who were notified recently of a reduction in wages of $1 per 1,000, went out on a strike this morning. They are well supplied with money from union men and confidently expect a victory. The manufacturers have already made slight concessions in stating that they will retain a few union men, whose wages are not to be reduced.

A Total Loss.

EATON RAPIDS, February 2.—Dr. Hall's medical sanitarium burned at 2 o'clock this morning. The building and all its contents were destroyed. The loss is $25,000; insurance, $2,000. It was a narrow escape for the business part of the city. All patients escaped. The fire originated in a burning smoke stack.

Business Troubles.

CINCINNATI, February 2.—John A. Awalt, doing business as Awalt & Co., jewelers, 177 Vine street, assigned to Charles F. Mussey, jr. The liabilities are estimated at $15,000; assets, $8,000. Preferences aggregating $1,500 were made in favor of Adam Awalt, C. C. Wolf, William Bourne and Emma K. Awalt.

Way Down.

TORONTO, February 2.—Extremely cold weather is prevailing throughout Ontario. The temperature ranges from zero to 30 degrees below.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 3.—It has come to the knowledge of some secret agents here that the socialists have stored arms and dynamite in this city and are ready for an outbreak or attack on capitalists. Men from Hocking Valley and elsewhere, it is said, will soon be ready for business and sensational developments are expected.

He Gave Himself Up.

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—Michael Horrigan, who murdered James Culbone in a saloon in this city Sunday, surrendered to the police at an early hour this morning.

Cold Enough to Freeze.

MIDDLESEX, Vt., Feb. 3.—The thermometer is 40 below zero here and in several adjacent towns this morning. At Marshfield it is 42 below, and at Moretown 46 below.

An Important Decision.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 3.—The judge of the district court announced their decision in the Campbell disbargement case this morning. The judgment is that Campbell be suspended ten days and pay the costs in the case.

The Bodies Recovered.

ZURICH, Feb. 3.—The bodies of two polytechnic students; Messrs. Carret, of Boston, and Beuney, of St. Helena, Isle of Wight, recently drowned by falling through the ice while skating on Lake Griefensee, have been recovered.

Make it Treason.

TRENTON, N, J. Feb. 3.—In the state senate this morning a petition was offered by Robert Sinnickson, of Trenton, asking the legislature to instruct their representatives in congress to have a bill passed making corruption of the ballot box a crime similar to that of treason.

The French Again Victorious.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Admiral Courbet telegraphs the war department to-day that the French forces, after severe fighting, carried the Chinese works commanding the Kelung mines. He states that the French troops lost nine killed and fifty-three wounded during the engagement. The Chinese loss is heavy.

How Chicago Teachers Whip.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of E. A. Barnes, principal of one of the public schools, for his alleged mistreatment of a twelve year old boy, named King. The boy is covered with bruises and cuts caused by whipping with a large horse whip. The principal alleges that the boy refused to perform some duty and refused to take off his overcoat, for which causes the punishment was more severe than otherwise.

The Chinese Question in Canada.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—In the house of commons, Shakspeare, of British Columbia, asked the government if it would be in order to introduce a bill during the present session, restricting the immigration of Chinese to the dominion. Sir John MacDonald replied that the whole question relating to the Chinese had been referred to a commission who would report to parliament in a few days and until the report was received the government would not say what they would do in the matter.

The Fire Record.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 3.—Fire broke out near Midnight last night in the basement of the Barge flouring mill of Dougherty brothers at Burlington, Ohio, a small village five miles above this city. The fire gained such headway that it was soon beyond control and the entire building and stock of flour and grain was totally destroyed, together with the books of the firm. The loss is partly covered with insurance.

PRINCETON, Wis, Feb. 3.—The American hotel was destroyed by fire. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $40,000. They were unable to save the clothing of the guests.

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The senate is transacting nothing but routine business to-day.

HOUSE.

Bland, from the committee of coinage, reported back the resolution calling on the secretary of the treasury for information as to whether the clearing house association of New York or any national bank refuses to receive silver dollars or certificates in settlement of their balances and whether any official of the government accedes to such practice, also what amount of gold came into the treasury in exchange at par for silver dollars ar certificates during January, 1885, and what amount of silver coin was in the treasury on the 1st of January, 1879, and every year thereafter, not held for redemption; also what amount of the of the receipts of the government have been received in silver coin or certificates since the first of January, 1879. Adopted.

On motion of Eaton the senate amendment to the house concurrent resolution making arrangements for counting the electoral vote was agreed to.

Cox, of New York, from the committee on naval affairs reported back a resolution calling on the secretary of the navy for information as to the exact amount of money that has been expended by the naval advisory board and what changes have been made from the original plans of Hull's boilers etc., for Chicago, Boston, Atlanta and Baltimore, and such changes were adopted.

Stewart, of Texas, from the committee on foreign affairs, reported a resolution requesting the president to take all necessary and proper measures to assure R. Santos, an American citizen, imprisoned in Ecuador, of a speedy and impartial trial and to protect him in his life and property.

The bill passed to regulate the forms of bills of lading and duties and liabilities of ship owners and others.

Holman, from the committee on appropriations, reported back a resolution requiring the secretary of the treasury to transmit to the house a list of persons on the rolls of the department as special agents on the 1st of November, 1884, and the 2d of February, 1883. Adopted.

NOTES.

Before the senate met this morning Riddleberger's desk was the center of attention from visitors and such senators as were in the chamber. A beautiful floral harp rested upon it, a tribute, it is presumed, of Riddleberger's Irish admirers. The harp was over two feet in height. The frame is composed of roses, heliotropes and miginonettes; the base of azalias, cuptarcins, lilies and other rare exotics.

The court martial in the Swaim case concluded its labors to-day and the signature of the members were attached to the record and findings. These will be sent to the secretary of war this afternoon. If the findings do not acquit Gen. Swaim the record and findings will be forwarded through the department to President Arthur. There is a rumor that Swaim is acquitted. While it can be traced to no definite source, this generally seems to be the opinion.

No decisions of importance were rendered by the supreme court of the United States to-day.

Mrs. Laura DeForce Gordon, of California, was admitted to the bar of the United States supreme court upon a motion of Mr. A. G. Riddle, this afternoon. Mrs. Gordon is the second woman allowed to practice before this court, the first being Mrs. Belva Lockwood, who has argued only one case since her admission to the bar in March, 1879.

The proprietor of the Arlington hotel, this city, received a letter to-day from private secretary Lamont definitely engaging rooms at that hotel for the president-elect, his three sisters and brother and for Colonel Lamont and family. The time of their arrival here is designated as March 2, but it is thought they may come a day or two sooner. Governor Cleveland will go to the Arlington like any other guest and pays his own bills.

News from Over the Pond.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—It is stated in diplomatic circles that the governments of Russia and America are parlying in regard to a treaty for the extradition of dynamiters.

Extra editions of newspapers containing cable dispatches from New York giving details of the shooting of O'Donovan Rossa are selling like wildfire on the streets of every city and town in Great Britain. Nearly every person seems jubilant over the announcement that the alleged chief of dynamiters has had some of his own medicine given him.

There is considerable excitement produced to-day by the announcement that the friends of Cunningham accused of having caused the explosion at the Tower of London are already beginning to take steps to rescue him from Clerkenwell prison. Early this morning the police observed a man loitering in the vicinity of the prison. They watched his movements closely and finally when they saw him put something in the letter box the governor of the prison arrested him.

When taken before a magistrate the prisoner said his name was Goodyear and recently had been discharged from a lunatic asylum. The package which the prisoner was seen to deposit in the governor's box was found to be a small parcel of paper on which were a number of figures. The police declared the prisoner was known to them and that he had served a term of imprisonment and his testimony in regard to himself was false. Scotland yard officials profess to believe that Goodyear's action in depositing paper in the box was simply a ruse on the part of Cunningham's friends to learn what they have to contend with.

The formula by which Mishler's Herb Bitters is compounded is over two hundred years old, and of German origin. The entire range of proprietary medicines cannot produce a preparation that enjoys so high a reputation in the community where it is made as

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

It is the best remedy for Kidney and Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Cramp in the Stomach, Indigestion, Malaria, Periodical Complaints, etc. As a Blood Purifier, it has no equal. It tones the system, strengthening, invigorating and giving new life.

The late Judge Hayes, of Lancaster Co., Pa., an able jurist and an honored citizen, once wrote: "Mishler's Herb Bitters is very widely known, and has acquired a great reputation for medicinal and curative properties. I have used myself and in my family several bottles, and I am satisfied that the reputation is not unmerited."

OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

THE ratio of fire losses to premiums in 1884 was 55 per cent. in the eastern and middle states, 48 per cent. in the western states, and 76 per cent. in the southern states. The aggregate ratio of losses was 45 per cent., and the excess of premiums over losses was $331,354,449.

IT is said that a pinch of powdered alum put into a pitcher of muddy water will clear it almost instantly. If some philantropist will pour a few barrels into the St. Joe and St. Mary's rivers the grateful citizens of Fort Wayne will erect a monument to his memory.

THE Pennsylvania doctors and undertakers held their conventions on the same day. As nobody dies when the physicians are attending to other than professional business, the undertakers can safely leave their offices that day. Hence the holding of both conventions on the same day.

A Rochelle, Ill., clergyman is vigorously preaching against roller skating, denouncing it as immoral and indecent. There is no doubt a great boom in the ring business at Rochelle in consequence. Nothing takes so well in this land of universal liberty as something naughty, but it must be nice you know.

PERHAPS some of the Washington correspondents in attributing the defeat of the Nicaragua treaty to Mr. Blaine are ascribing too much importance to that defunct statesman. An inspection of the vote will show that the treaty was killed by the democratic senators. Since when did Mr. Blaine get control of the democrats?

WHEN the Washington Star office was destroyed some thoughtful humanitarian went into the burning building at the risk of his life and awakened the night watchman. In view of this and many similar experiences it might be well to give the firemen explicit instructions to always wake up the watchman before turning on the water—he might get wet.

A PROMINENT medical authority of Chicago states that cats can not thrive without grass. Most people of this city have been laboring under the delusion that the domesticated cat could always thrive where there was a ridge pole to a roof or an echo to a dark alley. The Chicago physician is right however, but the cat ought to be put under the grass and kept there. The cat ought to be first killed.

BUT now that the Nicaragua treaty is fairly out of the way for the present, we ask the candid attention of the American people to the question of the expediency, the justice, the propriety, or even the decency of disposing of so important a matter without giving the country any opportunity whatever to form an opinion upon it. Granting that, under all circumstances, the conclusion arrived at in the senate is the safest and wisest, what reason was there that it should be reached in secret?

THE INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Seventy-five bills were introduced in the senate and house Saturday, and they adjourned at noon.

Senator Brown has introduced a bill regulating what needs a great deal of regulation, the granting of divorces.

A bill has been introduced in the house which proposes to make the jury expenses a part of the costs of the trial.

Representative Garrison introduced a bill regulating the running at large of all kinds of animals.

Representative Dale has introduced a bill so amending the metropolitan police law that the greenback party shall be recognized on the police boards.

Daily has amended his liquor bill that all saloons close at midnight until 4 o'clock a. m, so that it will apply only to cities of 5,000 voting population. This includes Fort Wayne, and there is a strong probability that the bill will be passed.

Senator Foulke has introduced a bill which provides that no one shall be appointed county superintendent who has not received a certificate from the state board of education.

Senator Willard is after the sleeping car companies that are endeavoring to avoid paying taxes. He introduced a bill Saturday requiring them to give in to the auditor an annual report of the earnings and the actual value of their stock.

Senator Foulke warmly approved of Bailey's resolution to appoint a commission to inquire into the contract system in prisons, and to the condition of labor.

There was no quorum in the senate Monday morning, nor Saturday, but both days were fruitful of business. Indeed, it seems as if the amount of work done was an inverse ratio to the number of senators present.

A complete cure for that debilitating drain that indicates a weakness of the urinary organs, nasal catarrh and other evidences of a diseased mucuous membrane may be found in the use of Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. Don't be frightened by the advertisements of quack doctors. This remedy will purify the blood, strengthen the parts affected, heal all irritation of the mucuous membrane, and remove every symptom of the disorders. It is a sure cure for nervous debility and general ill health.

The new United States senator from California is the Hon. Mr. $&$&.—[Philadelphia Press. Is this the Hon. Mr. Trade $&$&?

Every day adds to the great amount of evidence as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Letters are continually being received from all sections of the country, telling of benefits derived from this great medicine. It is unequalled for general debility, and as a blood purifier, expelling every trace of scrofula or other impurity. Now is the time to take it. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists.

There is now a growing tendency among juveniles for Shetland ponies, so much so that several breeders have gone into the business of raising them.

Alderman Donnelly is one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Lancaster, Pa. He thus tells of what Mishler's Herb Bitters did for him: "For some months past I had been very much afflicted with cramp in my legs, none of the remedies that I tried afforded me any relief until your bitters was recommended. I can honestly say that from the time I began its use the pain gradually wore off and now, after having used three bottles, I am free from all cramps and pains whatever."

Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox is visiting her old home in Milwaukee. She has a new volume of religious poems ready for publication.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years. I could not tell how many different remedies I have tried, and none seemed to reach my case like Ely's Cream balm. I had lost my smell entirely for the last fifteen years, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, and my smell is partly restored and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream balm for catarrh. I always had a trouble with my throat and a little hacking cough, and I am almost well of that. Mrs. E. E. Grimes; 67 Valley St., Bendrill, Perry Co., Ohio.

A Bowery tobacconist presents with every package of tobacco sold a bar of soap. Unfortunately many customers throw away the soap.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

There has never been a medicine for rheumatism introduced in Fort Wayne that has given such universal satisfaction as Durang's Rheumatic Remedy; it stands out alone as the one great remedy that actually cures this dread disease. It is taken internally and never has and never can fail to cure the worst case in the shortest time. It has the endorsement and recommendation of many leading physicians in this state and elsewhere. It is sold by every druggist at $1. Write for free 40 page pamphlet to R. K. Helphenstine, druggist, Washington, D. C. nov 30 d&w-7m

AN ORDINANCE

To license exhibitions of skating given in the city of Fort Wayne.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Fort Wayne that any person giving an exhibition of skating in any rooms, building, pavilion or enclosure, at which any fee of admission shall be directly or indirectly charged, shall first obtain from said city a license so to do, at the following rate: for one year twenty-five dollars and fees, and for a less period than one year five dollars per month and fees.

Sec. 2. Any person violating any provision of this ordinance shall upon conviction forfeit and pay a fine to said city of not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after its due publication.

Done at the council chamber of said city this 23rd day of December 1884.

SCROFULA.

Vanderbilt's Money Couldn't Buy It.

The Acworth News and Farmer of this week says: Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, living within 3 miles of Acworth, remarked that Vanderbilt's fortune could not buy from her what six bottles of Swift's Specific has done for her. Her statement is as follows: For thirty-one years I have suffered almost death from that horrible disease, scrofula. For years I was unable to do anything in keeping up my domestic affairs. Last October I was induced to try Swift's Specific, and used two bottles, and was so much benefited by it that I purchased four more from Messrs. Northcut & Johnson, which has almost entirely relieved me. I feel like a new person, and can do all my own housework. Before I took the S. S. S. my life was a burden, as my entire person was covered with sores, and in this miserable condition I did not care to live. I had tried every known remedy, and my case was generally regarded as incurable. I had been treated by the best physicians to no avail. I most heartily recommend Swift's Specific to the afflicted.

Messrs. Northcut & Johnson, merchants at Acworth, say: We know Mrs. Elizabeth Baker personally; we are familiar with her case. She is highly esteemed in this community.

Rheumatism Twenty Years.

I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for twenty years, at times with almost intolerable pain. I had the best medical treatment, and took all sorts of remedies, but without relief. Being reduced almost to a skeleton, and not being able to walk even with crutches, I was induced to try Swift's Specific, and it acted like a charm, and I am to-day entirely relieved. Have thrown away my crutches, and am in excellent health. I believe Swift's Specific will cure the worst cases of rheumatism.

MRS. EDNA MERSHON, Macon, Ga., Aug. 4, '84.

Consumption.

WETUMPKA, ALA., Sept. 26, 1884.—About six years ago I became afflicted with a very disagreeable skin disease, with larger, dry sores and many crusted pimples on my face, hands and shoulders. The sore on my shoulder eat out a hole nearly an inch deep, and the cancerous appearance of one of the sores near my eye alarmed me very much. I tried all kinds of treatment, but found nothing that seemed to affect the disease. I finally decided to try S. S. S. on advice of a physician, and in a short time the scabs dropped from the sores and left my skin smooth and well. I consider S. S. S. the greatest blood medicine made, and the only thing that will cure the disease with which I was afflicted. I think my trouble was the result of a terrible attack of malarial fever, contracted while farming in the Tallapoosa river swamp. I can be found at my office in the court house at Wetumpka. You can refer to me.

Rev. Father O'Leary, who was ordained a priest at St. Mary's church last week by Rt. Rev. Bishop Rademacher, said his first mass yesterday at Valapraiso, his old home.

R. E. Morningstar, of Louisville, will give an exhibition of fancy skating at the Academy of Music roller rink to-night. Mr. Morningstar is selling the Crescent skate.

The Methodist Episcopal churches of the city have arranged for a series of union revival meetings under the direction of Rev. Sheridan Baker, of Ohio, to commence February 14.

Workmen are putting a new fan in the Pittsburg car shop for driving shavings from the machines through pipes leading to a building built for their reception, just outside of the main shop.

A special freight train passed through here yesterday with nine car loads of alcohol from DesMoines, Iowa, en route to England. The same train contained five cars of fresh meat and fifty cars of general merchandise.

The indications for the lower lake region as reported by the weather bureau at Washington to THE SENTINEL are as follows: Light snows and partly cloudy weather, warmer, winds generally from the south but occasionally variable.

W. H. Reinewalt and C. Hostman recently completed a picture frame that was a marvel of workmanship inasmuch as it was made of nearly 6,000 different pieces of wood. The firm of Leichner & Wagner won it at a raffle last night.

D. B. Kehler, receiver for A. C. Katt & Co., has moved the goods of the firm across the street into the Aveline house block, where he will be pleased to see patrons. Mr. Kehler has added many novelties to the stock and is pleasant to trade with.

Engine 222, just out of the Pittsburg shops to-day, took train No. 1 to Chicago, with James Southern at the throttle. Engineer A. Johnson will go east to-night on freight train 80 with engine No. 226, on the trial trip. These locomotives come out under the supervision of Foreman Barney Fitzpatrick and never fail to give satisfaction.

Will R. Emery, editor of the Huntington Democrat and late managing editor of THE SENTINEL, is in the city visiting old friends. After walking around town awhile, gazing into the third-story windows of the hotels and bumping his head against the telegraph wires, he called at his old scenes of labor. Will is making things fairly hum at Huntington. He is big in brain and heart as well as in body.

H. H. Robinson has been quoted as opposed to the new Mayer house scheme. He writes Mr. Mayer denying the statement and says he will hail the "New Mayor" as a public improvement, and Mr. Mayer, as its manager, will receive his congratulations. C. H. Aldrich has a letter from J. B. White in advocacy of the new hotel. It is probable that if Mr. Nix's proposition is not soon acted on he will transfer it to Dubuque, Iowa, and erect a $30,000 hotel on the present Mayer house site.

The Academy Skating rink opened last night and Messrs. Trentman & Smith have every reason to congratulate themselves on the success of the inaugural. Fully 1,000 ladies and gentlemen assembled to witness the festivities and participate in them. The very best people were in attendance and the resort will be popular and genteel. The grand march was a novel feature, and Robert Morningstar, of Louisville, did some clever fancy skating. The City band furnished the music and hereafter Rinecke's full orchestra will give time to the merry skaters. The sport is established here and the Academy will hold its friends. To-night the assembly will be as large and the occasion as novel and pleasant.

A BRACE OF 'EM.

Stinebrenner and DeLorn to be Taken to Huntington for Trial--Officer Baumgartner's Wound.

THE SENTINEL last evening covered all the important points in the Huntington tragedy. Ex-Sheriff Kintz, is at Lima, Ohio, where John DeLorn, is under arrest for being an accomplice with Stinebrenner in the tragedy and burglarly now agitating our neighboring village. This evening Officer Kintz will pass through here with DeLorn and an officer will have Stinebrenner at the depot when the men will be handcuffed together. They will have a preliminary hearing at Huntington to-morrow.

Stinebrenner, who is under arrest for complicity in the Huntington tragedy, is not so innocent as he affects to be. He has long been acquainted with the gang and their crooked business. He boarded with the men at Dayton, Ohio, and accompanied them on several raids in that state. One of their party in now doing twenty-five years for safe cracking in Ohio. Stinebrenner long worked for Keller, the file man.

The condition of Max Baumgartner is still favorable. The wound is doing well and suppurating nicely. He rests easy, has no pain, except when moved, and can move his toes and the left ankle. His pulse and temperature are good. In the report, at first, of the diagnosis of the case, owing to the haste and confusion, a full statement of the case was not given. We are now able, by authority, to give a clear account. The ball entered on the right side of the spinal column. The transverse spinous process of the right side of the tenth vertebra is broken, and the ball struck the body of this vertebra near the top. This is as far as it was deemed advisable to probe. It is supposed, however, that the ball ranged upword and now rests in the lower lobe of the right lung. This is indicated by the expectorations.

THE COURT HOUSE.

Daily Record of Litigation in Various Courts and the News of the County Offices.

Fred Richards, the convicted murderer of Amos Bocksesto, will have his second trial next Monday before Judge Edward O'Rourke. The first verdict against Richards was that he suffer death and as the people of Adams county are as much incensed against him as ever it is probable that another bitter fight will ensue. The morning a special venue of forty man were drawn by the commissioners and from the gentlemen will Fred Richards' jury be selected. The names are as follows: John R. Hartzell, Wm. Adams, Nicholas Snider, Henry C. Zollinger, Adams township; Alfred H. Bates, Charles Noyer, Daniel J. Rhodes, Aboit township; Benj. Slaughter, Cedar Creek; John O'Rourke, Philip Harter, D. B. Strope, D. J. Aber, A. D. Reid, Martin Noll, Wm. Schaffer, Henry M. Williams, city; Henry C. W. Meyer and Abraham Parker, St. Joe; Lewis Zeis, Jess Greenwalt and Wm. H. Ringwald, Springfield; Francis Hugnard and Alex McDaniels, Washington; Wm. Hellar, Jackson; Jacob Furthmiller and Nicholas Ladig, Jefferson; Wm. Fagwell and James Crow, Lafayette; Thomas Gorman and Joseph Rockhill, Lake; Randal B. Sprague, Madison; Adam Rideman, Monroe; David P. Smith and Hiram Parent, Milan; Jacob Hake and George W. Perkins, Marion; Patrick Horn, Perry; John Grider and Jepe Rice, Pleasant; George A. Aahley, St. Joe.

Judge Frazer, of Warsaw, arrived here last night and this afternoon sat in the superior court to hear the celebrated Little River ditch case. Among those who object to the payment of the assessment for draining the swamp west of the city are the Wabash, Muncie and Nickel Plate railway companies, Hugh McCulloch and William Braunstrettor. Since the first hearing they have had elaborate surveys made and will raise the point that the work is impracticable.

Robert Cummings, et. al. have sued E. D. Dague, et. al. in the superior court for $1,000. Coombs, Bell & Morris appear for the plaintiff.

The case of the Continental Improvement company vs. Clark was settled in the circuit court to-day.

CHARGED WITH HERESY.

Ferdinand August Miller, a Fort Wayne Jewish Student, Charged with Encouraging Conversions to the Methodist Church.

The admission of the two young Hebrews, Solomon Batt and Elias Grosfield into the Methodist church at Cincinnati has occasioned wild comment. The matter now becomes of local interest because Ferdinand August Miller, a former Fort Wayne boy who last summer was converted to the Jewish faith, is said to be responsible for the conversion of the men to Christianity. Solomon Batt said to Rabbi Wise, of Cincinnati, in reply to a question, that he was an Israelite by profession, and had no desire to become a Methodist. He charged F. A. Miller with instructing him to say to the superintendent of the Y. M. C. A. that he desired to become a Methodist, offering him as an inducement that he would be sent to college. Miller, on the contrary, denies all these allegations in toto, and Rabbi Wise dismissed Batt with a lecture upon lying.

F. A. Miller, who is a theologian in a Jewish college, is a brother of Peg Miller, the well-known typo. Ferdinand was raised here. He used to carry papers, then worked into a news stand and later was employed in the Pittsburg shop.

The very best remedy that can be compounded from our present knowledge of drugs, for colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis and other lung diseases, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It has cured many cases of consumption when all other remedies had failed. A single spoonful will cure an ordinary cough or cold and give instant relief to asthma. It is soothing, healing and strengthening to throat and lungs and is very pleasing to take.

Removal

The business of A. C. Katt & Co. has been removed from No. 70 Calhoun street to No. 4 Aveline House Block. The business will be continued as heretofore and by careful attention to the wants of the people, we hope to merit a fair share of your patronage. The former low prices will still continue, and parties desiring anything in the line of Books, Stationary, Artist's Material will find it to their interest to give us a call.

CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago
With bilious fever
"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I
Could not move!
I shrunk!
From 228 lbs. to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles, I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

CHAPTER II.

Malden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1880. Gentlemen—I suffered with attacks of sick headache." Neuralgia, female trouble, for years in the most terrible and excruciating manner.

No medicine or doctor could give me relief or cure, until I used Hop Bitters.

"The first bottle
Nearly cured me;"
The second made me as well and strong as when a child.
"And I have been so to this day."
My husband was an invalid for twenty years with a serious

A Sure Cure For Catarrh.

Catarrh is best described as a nasal cold, and will if neglected become chronic, and thus by extending to the throat and lungs prove dangerous. It is not only very offensive and annoying, but it enfeebles, and if not attended to in time, destroys the mucous lining of the nasal cavities. Pond's Extract is a specific remedy for this disease. Its application gives immediate relief by removing all objectionable matter from the obstructed passages. For cases of particularly severe or chronic catarrh we recommend the use of Pond's Extract Catarrh Remedy, in which the medicinal virtues of Pond's Extract are combined with other well known ingredients, thus increasing the soothing and healing qualities of the remedy.

The Genesis of Nye.

[Somerset Reporter.]

BILL NYE'S WINTER RESORT,
HUDSON, Wis., Dec. 31, 1884.

Editor Reporter, Skowhegan, Me.:

A copy of The Reporter has been sent me recently with the following paragraph marked:

WHERE WAS "BILL" NYE BORN?

Maine has again and again proved that this is the place to raise men and women, and the crop by no means diminishes. Edgar W. Nye commonly known as "Bill," says he was born in Skowhegan in 1850. Who can tell us of his parentage?

As the item closes with a query, I will state for the benefit of the curious, that Bill Nye was born in Maine, in 1850, though not in Skowhegan. As near as I am able to learn from my parents, who happened to be present on that solemn occasion, I was born in the village of Shirley, in Piscataquis county.

My father's name was Franklin Nye, a man for whom I have always entertained the highest regard. Many is the time he has gone out of his way to do me a favor.

My mother's maiden name was Eliza M. During. These historical facts of course, are of no interest to the general public, but I write them fully in order to relieve Skowhegan of an unjust imputation. If I ever said I was born in Skowhegan I did not do so maliciously. It was a joke.

I would not write this letter were it not for my parents who are still living and in no way to blame. Whatever I may have been, I hope their names will not be in any way mixed up with it.

Wishing you a happy new year, and hoping that Mr. Blaine is doing as well as could be expected. I am sincerely yours,

EDGAR WILSON NYE (Bill Nye.)

President of Sorosis.

"JENNY JUNE," MRS. J. C. CROLY.

The name of "Jenny June," otherwise Mrs. J. C. Croly, of New York, is known to more newspaper readers than that of any other woman writer in this country. Practically she pioneered the way for woman in journalism. Some 30 years ago she wrote a note one day to a New York editor, asking him why it was that of all the mass of matter which went into newspapers there was nothing printed of any particular interest to women, who constitute half the race. The result was that shortly after this the lady herself was engaged by the editor to write something for his paper that should be of interest to women. She began the task, and has been at it ever since.

Jenny June is an indefatigable worker. Her weekly letters have made her writings familiar wherever newspapers are read. For years she contributed besides these a letter each Sunday to the New York World. She is the author of a number of excellent books. Moreover, she has been the associate editor of Demorest's Monthly from the time the first copy appeared, 24 years ago. Not more than two or three newspaper men in the country have written as large a quantity of matter for the press as Mrs. Croly has done.

She is extremely popular among her own sex, and her sympathy with them amounts to enthusiasm. As an organizer, a promoter of the corps spirit among women, she is without an equal. She was the founder of the Sorosis club, and has been its honored president for many years. She originated the idea of the Woman's congress, since become so popular. Besides the literary gifts that have made her famous, she possesses a fine tact and kindliness of nature that are as rare as the other.

In personal appearance, Jenny June shows no trace of the life of labor she has led. Her rich brown hair, softly tinted complexion, and slender, erect figure, give her a look of eternal youthfulness. Her face is full of purity and sweetness. She is a native of Leicestershire, England, but came to America in childhood.

Editor of the London World.

EDMUND YATES.

The imprisonment of Edmund Yates in a British jail for a term of four months, for allowing a libelous article to appear in his paper, The London Word, has attracted universal attention. Mr. Yates made a tour of this country in 1873, and later was the London correspondent of a New York daily. He is best known as a novelist. In 1874 he established The World, "a journal for men and women," which has had a most extraordinary success. The fearless style he adopted in his paper has brought him into trouble before, but this is his most humiliating experience. He edits his paper from the prison, and the day after his incarceration sold 20,000 extra copies of it.

Peculiarity of the Sex.

[Chicago News.]

Widow Magaffin, of Kentucky, saw somebody snooking around her barn the other night, so she shouldered her rifle and went out and shot a notorious hog-thief dead. That was well done, but we can find men willing to bet that if some one would whisper "rats" in the Widow Magaffin's ear she would jump on a chair and scream till she fainted away.

LOVE OR MONEY.

The Best Story of the Season.

Bartley looked round in amazement, and saw the cadaverous face and diabolical sneer of Leonard Monckton. Fourteen years and evil passions had furrowed that bloodless cheek; but there was no mistaking the man. It was a surprise to Bartley to see him there, and he spoken to by a knave who had tried to rob him; but he was too full of his immediate trouble to think much of minor things.

"What do you know about it?" said he, roughly.

"I'll tell you," said Monckton, coolly. He then walked in a most leisurely way to the gate that led into the meadow, whose eastern boundary was Hope's quickest hedge, and he came in the same leisurely way up to Mr. Bartley, and leaned his back, with his hands behind him, with perfect effrontery, against the palings.

"I know all," said he. "I overheard you in your office fourteen years ago, when you changed children with Hope."

Bartley uttered an exclamation of dismay.

"And I've been hovering about here all day, and watched the little game, and now I am fly, and no mistake."

Bartley threw up his hands in dismay. "Then it's all over; I am doubly ruined. I cannot hope to silence you both."

"Don't speak so loud, governor."

"Why not?" said Bartley; "others will, if I don't." He lowered his voice for all that, and wondered what was coming.

"Listen to me," said Monckton, exchanging his cynical manner for a quiet and weighty one.

Bartley began to wonder and look at him with a sort of awe. The words now dropped out of Monckton's thin lips as if they were chips of granite, so full of meaning was every syllable; and Bartley felt it.

"It's not so bad as it looks. There are only two men that know you are a felon."

Bartley winced visibly.

"Now one of those men is to be bought"—Bartley lifted his head with a faint gleam of hope at that—"and the other—has gone—down a coal mine."

"What good will that do me?"

The villain paused, and looked Bartley in the face.

"That depends. Suppose you were to offer me what you offered Hope, and suppose Hope—was never—to come up—again."

"No such luck," said Bartley, shaking his head sorrowfully.

"Luck?" said Monckton, contemptuously; "we make our own luck. Do you see that vagabond lying under the tree? That's Ben Burnley."

"Ah!" said Bartley; "the ruffian Hope discharged."

"The same, and a man that is burning to be revenged on him. He's your luck, Mr. Bartley. I know the man, and what he has done in a mine before to-day."

Then he drew near to Bartley's ear, and hissed into it these fearful words:

"Send him down the mine; promise him five hundred pounds—if William Hope—never comes up again—and William Hope never will."

Bartley drew back aghast. "Assassination!" he cried; and by generous impulse of horror he half fled from the tempter. But Monckton followed him up, and laid his hand upon his shoulder.

"Hush," said he; "you are getting too near that window, and it is open. Let me see there's nobody inside."

He looked in. There was nobody. Grace was up-stairs, but it did so happen that she came into the room soon after.

"Nothing of the kind. Accident. Accidents will happen in mines, and talking of luck, this mine was declared dangerous this very day."

"No, no!" groaned Bartley, trembling in every limb. "It's a horrible crime; I dare not risk it."

"It is but risk. The alternative is certain. You will be indicted for fraud by the Cliffords."

Bartley groaned.

"They'll live in your home, they'll revel in your money, while you wear a cropped head—and a convict dress—in a stone cell at Portland."

"No, never!" screamed Bartley. "Man, man, you are tempting me to my perdition."

"I am saving you. Just consider—where is the risk? It is only an accident, and who will suspect you? Men don't ruin their own mines. Here just let me call him."

Bartley made a faint gesture to forbid it, but Monckton pretended to take that as an assent.

"Hy, Ben," he cried, "come here."

"No, no!" cried Bartley; "I'll have nothing to do with him."

"Well," said Monckton, "then don't, but hear what he has got to say; he'll tell you how easily accidents happen in a mine."

Then Burnley came in, but stood at some distance. Bartley turned his back upon them both, and edged away from them a little; but Monckton stood between the two men, determined to bring them together.

"Ben," said he, "Mr. Bartley takes you on again at my request; no thanks to Mr. Hope."

"No, curse him; I know that."

"Talking of that, Ben, how was it that you got rid of that troublesome overseer in the Welsh colliery?"

Ben started and looked aghast for a moment, but soon recovered himself, and told his tale of blood, with a strange mixture of satisfaction and awe, washing his hands in the air nervously all the time.

"Well, you see, sir, we put some guncotton in a small canister, with a fuse cut to last four minutes, and hid it in one of the old workings the men had left; then they telt t' overseer they thowt t' water was coming in by quickly. He got there just in time; and what with t' explosion, fire-damp, and fallen coal, we never saw t' overseer again."

"Dear me," said Monckton; "and Mr. Hope has gone down the mine expressly to inspect old workings. Is it not a strange coincidence? Now, if such an accident was to befall Mr. Hope, it's my belief Mr. Bartley would give you five hundred pounds."

Bartley made no reply; the perspiration was pouring down his face, and he looked a picture of abject guilt and terror.

Monckton looked at him, and decided for him. He went softly, like a cat, to Ben Burnley, and said, "If an accident does occur, and that man never comes up again, you are to have five hundred pounds."

"Five hundred pounds!" shouted Ben. "I'll do t' job. Nay, nay, but," said he—and his countenance fell—"they will not let me go down the mine."

The diabolical agent went cat-like to Bartley.

"Please give me a written order to let this man go to work again in the mine."

Bartley trembled and hesitated, but at last took out his pocket-book, and wrote on a leaf:

"Take Burnley on again.

R. BARTLEY."

Whilst writing it his hand shook, and when it was written he would not tear it out. He panted and quivered, and was as pale as ashes, and said, "No, no, it's a death-warrant; I cannot;" and his trembling hand tried to convey the note-book back to his pocket, but it fell from his shaking fingers, and Monckton took it up, and quietly tore the leaf out, and took it across to Burnley, in spite of a feeble gesture the struggling wretch made to detain him. He gave Ben the paper, and whispered, "Be off, before he changes his mind."

"You'll hear of an accident in the mine before the day's over," said Burnley; and he went off without a grain of remorse under the double stimulus of revenge and lucre.

"He'll do it," cried Monckton triumphantly, "and Hope will end his days in the Bartley mine."

These words were hardly out of his lips when Grace Hope walked out of the house, pale, and with her eyes gleaming, and walked rapidly past them. She had nothing on her head but a white handkerchief that was tied under her chin. Her appearance and her manner struck the conspirators with terror. Bartley stood aghast, but the more resolute villain seized her as she passed him. She was not a bit frightened at that, but utterly amazed. It was a public road.

"How dare you touch me, you villain!" she cried. "Let me go. Ah, I shall know you again, with your face like a corpse and your villainous eyes. Let me go, or I'll have you hung."

"Where are you going?" said Bartley, trembling.

"To my father."

"He is not your father; it is a conspiracy. You must come home with me."

"Never!" cried Grace, and by a sudden and violent effort she flung Monckton off.

But Bartley, mad with terror, seized her that moment, and gave Monckton time to recover and seize her again by the arm.

"You are not of age," cried Bartley; "you are under my authority, and you shall come home with me."

"No, no!" cried Grace. "Help! help! murder! help!"

She screamed and struggled so violently that with all their efforts they could hardly hold her. Then the devil Monckton began to cry louder still. "She's mad, she's mad; help! to secure a mad woman." This terrified Grace Hope. She had read of the villainies that had been done under cover of that accusation, which, indeed, has too often prevented honest men from interfering with deeds of lawless violence. But she had all her wits about her, woman's wit included. She let them drag her past the cottage door. Then she cried out with delight, "Ah! here is my father." They followed the direction of her eye, and relaxed their grasp. Instantly she drew her hands vigorously downward, got clear of them, gave them each a furious push that sent them flying forward, then darted back through the open door, closed it, and bolted it inside just as Monckton, recovering himself, quickly dashed furiously against it—in vain.

The quick-witted villain saw the pressing danger in a moment. "To the back door, or we are lost!" he yelled. Bartley dashed round to that door with a cry of dismay.

But Grace was before him just half a minute. She ran through the house.

LATE LOCAL NEWS.

Will T. Brackenridge has been appointed a notary public. His commission runs for four years.

Hon. Henry Manning, director of the prison north, left to-day for Michigan City. To-morrow the directors confer with the house committee and on Saturday with the senate committee.

O'Donovan Rossa was shot in New York at a late hour yesterday afternoon and the Gazette was the only morning newspaper in Fort Wayne that contained any mention of the affair this morning. A morning paper without telegraph is very tiresome. We might also state in this connection that THE SENTINEL and Gazette are the only newspapers in Fort Wayne that go to the expense of buying telegraphic news. THE SENTINEL to-day contains a full report of the preliminary examination of the would-be assassin. No other Fort Wayne paper to-day has this.

Arrested on Suspicion.

This afternoon Sheriff Nelson arrested a young man at the Hedekin house on suspicion of being a horse thief. After many evasive answers he gave his name as David Ahl, from near Brian, Ohio. He drove from there yesterday and last night in a white sleigh behind a sorrel colt. He will be held to await identification, but Mr. Nelson believes the man is fleeing from the wrath of a wronged woman.

Red Roses on Pale Cheeks.

Thin blood means poor health. Many girls and women look as if they never had enjoyed a hearty meal or a brisk walk of a mile. Languor and debility possess these sorrowing persons. Give them Brown's Iron Bitters. Then their blood will be pure and rich and they will enjoy health. Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Cullman, Alabama, says she took Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility, and was cured.

POND'S EXTRACT

THE WONDER OF HEALING!

Catarrh. The Extract is the only specific for this disease. Cold in Head, &c. Our "Catarrh Cure," specially prepared to meet serious cases, contains all the curative properties of the Extract; our Nasal Syringe invaluable for use in catarrhal affections, is simple and inexpensive.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia. Soothing application has cured so many cases of these distressing complaints as the Extract.

Hemorrhages. Bleeding from the Lungs, Stomach, Nose, or from any cause, is speedily controlled and stopped.

Diphtheria & Sore Throat. Use the Extract promptly. It is a sure cure. Delay is dangerous.

For Piles, Blind, Bleeding or Itching, it is the greatest known remedy.

For Ulcers, Old Sores or Open Wounds its action upon these is most remarkable.

Caution.—POND'S EXTRACT has been imitated. The genuine has the words "POND'S EXTRACT" blown in the glass, and our picture trade-mark on surrounding buff wrapper. None other is genuine. Always insist on having POND'S EXTRACT. Take no other preparation. It is never sold in bulk or by measure.

Coffees, Teas and Sugars.

Our Tea Trade is continually growing. We now sell as much Tea in a month as we formerly did in a year, and there is no secret about it. It is simply giving our customers the most we can for their money and the best Teas at low prices. The reason we can do this is we purchase in large lines direct of the Importers and then sell direct to our customers, thereby saving them the intermediate profits of the speculator jobber and the wholesale merchants, which is 20 to 25 per cent. on the dollar.
